

Controller for equipage LUX

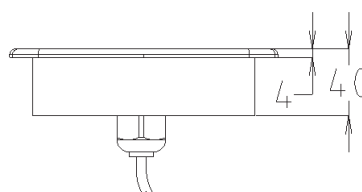

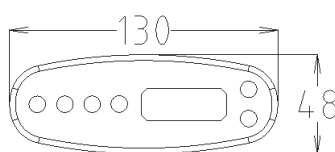

TM62 with custom made design with intelligent automatic drying function

The most advanced controller TM62, that is electronically controlling all the functions including pump revolutions, is newly supplied without logo. This controller (like all other types) is now possible to supply in design or with logo according to the desire of the customer.

For orders above 50pcs, the controller can be supplied without the price increase.

Since the 11+ software version this controller has the function of intelligent automatic drying of the air jet system with the 20 minutes delayed start after the water level is below the water level sensor or by the last press of the button.

This function increases the user's comfort and provides the system's blower drying after each use.
